These Melbourne plastic surgeons are at the top of their game in the medical field.

With Australians spending an estimated $2bn each year on cosmetic procedures, see the surgeons who are most in demand in the city.

DR CHRIS MOSS

Dr Chris Moss is one of Melbourne's best facelift and rhinoplasty surgeons.

He's been performing facial rejuvenation surgeries such as face, neck and brow lifts, eyelid surgery and nose jobs for more than 20 years at his Toorak private plastic surgery centre.

"Helping my patients feel better and more confident about themselves through plastic surgery has a profoundly positive impact on their lives," Dr Moss said.

"Being able to restore people to what they were or to address their appearance concerns is an amazing thing to do for someone. I couldn't think of a better career and that's why I chose it."

Over the years Dr Moss' profile has grown via word of mouth and his media appearances.

Dr Moss and his wife Andrea also run a beauty clinic in Toorak called Liberty Belle Skin Centre and have released a product line of the same name.

The surgeon's ability to achieve natural-looking results also explain his popularity.

"My results are beautiful and natural looking yet undetectable as being the result of surgery," Dr Moss said.

"I always work to achieve exceptional results through aesthetic vision and judgment. In basic terms — knowing what has to be done and how much to do. The best plastic surgery is fine artistry and it's vital to preserve each patient's uniqueness."

Dr Moss has also performed research into the anatomy of the face at the start of his career, followed by training with the international masters of Facial Plastic Surgery in the US and Europe.
